SECTION 1

The Repeat Buyer System

Your complete framework for turning a single sale into a lifetime of orders.

Most handmade sellers treat every sale as a stand-alone event. They find a buyer, make the sale, ship the piece, and start looking for the next new customer. That approach is exhausting and expensive. The cost of finding a brand-new customer—whether it is your time posting on social media, your money on ads, or your energy at craft fairs—is always higher than the cost of selling to someone who already bought from you and loved what they received.

This guide gives you three interlocking systems that, when used together, turn your handmade table setting business into one that grows on repeat orders rather than a constant chase for new faces. You will learn how to plan seasonal collections that give past buyers a reason to come back, how to take custom orders without losing time or money, and how to set up simple reorder systems that keep your name in front of every buyer who walks through your door.

Why Repeat Buyers Matter for Table Settings

Table runners, placemats, centerpieces, and coasters are inherently seasonal. A customer who buys a fall runner will want a holiday runner eight weeks later, a spring set after that, and a summer set after that. One happy buyer can place four or more orders a year without you spending a single extra minute finding them. Your job is to make that easy for them.

Let us start with the foundation: your seasonal collection model.

1A. The Seasonal Collection Model

Why Seasonal Collections Work for Table Setting Pieces

People change their table decor. It is one of the few areas of the home where swapping things out every few months is normal and expected. Think about your own dining table: it probably looks different in December than it does in July. Your customers feel the same way.

Instead of selling individual pieces one at a time with no connection between them, seasonal collections let you:

- Give past buyers a clear reason to come back. "I have a new fall collection" is a natural, welcome message. "Hey, want to buy another placemat?" is not.
- Batch your production. Making five coordinating pieces at once is more efficient than switching between unrelated custom orders.

- Create urgency without being pushy. Seasonal collections have a natural window. Once Thanksgiving passes, nobody is buying a harvest runner. The deadline is built in.
- Raise your average order value. A customer who came for a runner sees the matching placemats and adds them. Collections sell sets; individual listings sell singles.
- Build a recognizable brand. Regular releases signal that you are a serious, active business—not someone who dabbles when they feel like it.

How to Create Themed Collections

A collection is a group of 3 to 5 pieces that share a visual thread: a color palette, a pattern style, a material choice, or an occasion. They do not all have to match exactly—they need to feel like they belong together.

The three anchors of any collection:

1. Color palette. Pick 2–3 main colors and 1 accent. Example: cream, sage green, and a burnt orange accent for a fall collection.
2. Material or technique. If your collection uses macramé cord, keep all pieces in cord. If it uses woven fabric, keep it woven. Mixing materials within one collection can look disjointed.
3. Occasion or mood. "Rustic Thanksgiving gathering" is specific. "Fall stuff" is vague. The more vivid the scene in your customer's mind, the easier the sale.

Planning Your Collection Release Schedule

You do not need to release twelve collections a year. Four is the sweet spot for most handmade sellers—one per major season. If you have the capacity, you can add one or two holiday-specific mini collections (a Valentine's Day set with two or three pieces, for example).

RELEASE	SEASON	PIECES	LAUNCH WINDOW	SALES WINDOW
Collection 1	Spring	3–5	Late February	March–May
Collection 2	Summer	3–5	Late May	June–August
Collection 3	Fall	3–5	Late August	September–November
Collection 4	Holiday	4–6	Late October	November–December

Launch Before the Season, Not During It

The biggest mistake is launching a Christmas collection in December. By then, shoppers have already bought their decor or run out of time to wait for a handmade piece. Launch 4–6 weeks before the occasion. Your holiday collection should be live by late October at the latest.

How Many Pieces Per Collection

Start with 3 pieces if you are new to collections. As you get comfortable, aim for 4–5 pieces. Each collection should include at least one anchor piece (a table runner or large centerpiece mat) and two or three supporting pieces (placemats, coasters, napkin rings, bread basket liners).

Recommended structure:

- 1 table runner (your anchor—usually the highest-priced piece)
- 2–4 placemats (sold individually or as a set of 4 or 6)
- 1 accent piece (centerpiece mat, coaster set, napkin ring set, or bread basket liner)

Naming Your Collections for Memorability

Good collection names paint a picture. They make the customer feel something. Bad collection names are generic or forgettable.

Strong Names

- "Golden Harvest" (fall)
- "Coastal Morning" (summer)
- "Winter Hearth" (holiday)
- "Meadow Song" (spring)
- "Fireside Feast" (Thanksgiving)

Weak Names

- "Fall Collection 2024"
- "Summer Set"
- "Holiday Bundle"
- "Spring Group"
- "Autumn Pieces"

Two-word names work best. The first word evokes a setting or feeling; the second word grounds it. Keep a running list of name ideas in your phone—inspiration strikes at odd times.

Collection Examples by Season

COLLECTION NAME	SEASON	COLORS	PIECES	MATERIAL FOCUS
Meadow Song	Spring	Soft pink, ivory, sage	Runner, 4 placemats, centerpiece mat	Cotton cord, pastel-dyed
Coastal Morning	Summer	Ocean blue, sandy beige, white	Runner, 4 placemats, coaster set (4)	Jute + cotton blend
Golden Harvest	Fall	Burnt orange, cream, olive	Long runner, 6 placemats, bread basket liner	Natural jute with cotton accents
Winter Hearth	Holiday	Deep red, forest green, gold metallic	Runner, 4 placemats, napkin ring set (4), centerpiece mat	Cotton cord with metallic thread
Rose & Blush	Valentine's Day	Dusty rose, blush pink, cream	Short runner, 2 placemats, coaster set (2)	Soft cotton cord
Starlight Table	New Year's Eve	Black, gold, ivory	Runner, 4 placemats	Cotton with metallic gold cord

1B. The Custom Order System

Custom orders can be the most profitable part of your business—or the most stressful. The difference is having a system. This section gives you one.

Taking Custom Orders Confidently

The biggest fear most handmade sellers have about custom work is undercharging, overcommitting, or dealing with a customer who keeps changing their mind. All three problems come from the same root: unclear agreements at the start.

Before you say yes to any custom order, you need answers to five questions:

1. What exactly do they want? Type of piece (runner, placemats, centerpiece), approximate size, color preferences, and any specific pattern requests.
2. When do they need it? A birthday next week is a different commitment than a holiday dinner two months away.
3. What is their budget range? This saves everyone time. If they are expecting a handmade runner for the price of a mass-produced one, you will both be disappointed.
4. How many pieces? A single runner is different from a full table set for eight.
5. What will they use it for? Everyday use, a specific event, or a gift? This affects your material and technique recommendations.

How to Quote Custom Work

Use a simple two-part pricing formula:

Custom order price = Base price of the closest standard piece + Customization fee

The customization fee covers three things:

- Design time — Planning the custom pattern, selecting colors, creating a sample swatch if needed.
- Non-standard materials — If they want a color you do not stock, you need to source it.
- Exclusivity — A custom piece means you are making something just for them, which takes you away from pieces you could sell to multiple buyers.

CUSTOMIZATION LEVEL	WHAT IT INCLUDES	SUGGESTED FEE
Level 1 — Color swap	Same pattern, different color from your available stock	No extra fee, or a flat small fee if sourcing new colors
Level 2 — Size change	Standard pattern/color but non-standard dimensions (longer runner, larger placemats)	Proportional increase based on additional materials + 15–20% for extra labor

CUSTOMIZATION LEVEL	WHAT IT INCLUDES	SUGGESTED FEE
Level 3 — New pattern	Customer wants a pattern you have not made before, or significant modifications to an existing one	30–50% above base price, depending on complexity
Level 4 — Full custom design	From-scratch design: customer describes a vision, you create the pattern, make a sample swatch, finalize, and produce	50–100% above base price; consider a non-refundable design deposit

The Design Deposit

For Level 3 and Level 4 custom orders, charge a non-refundable design deposit (typically 25–50% of the total) before you begin any work. This protects your time if the customer changes their mind after you have already planned and sourced materials. The deposit applies toward the final price. Communicate this clearly upfront—it actually builds trust because it shows you take the work seriously.

Managing Customer Expectations

The single most important phrase in custom work: "Here is exactly what you will receive."

Before starting production, send the customer a written summary that includes:

- Piece type and dimensions
- Colors and materials
- Pattern description (or a photo of a similar piece in your portfolio)
- Total price (itemized: base + customization fee + shipping)
- Timeline: start date, estimated completion date, ship date
- Number of revisions included (recommend: 1 included, additional revisions at a flat fee)
- Care instructions for the finished piece

Ask them to confirm this summary before you begin. This is your contract. It does not need to be a legal document—a clear message that they reply "yes" to is enough.

Timeline Communication

For custom orders, send updates at three points:

- 1 Order confirmed. "Your custom [piece] is confirmed. I will begin working on it [date]. Expected completion: [date]. I will send you a progress photo midway."
- 2 Midway progress. "Here is a quick photo of your [piece] in progress. Everything is on track for [completion date]. Let me know if you have any questions."

3

Completion + shipping. "Your [piece] is finished! Here is a photo of the completed piece. I am packaging it now and will ship it by [date]. You will get tracking as soon as it goes out."

Handling Revision Requests

Revision requests are where custom orders can spiral. Set clear boundaries from the start:

- Before production: Unlimited changes to the plan. Colors, sizes, patterns—change anything you want. This costs nothing because you have not started making it.
- During production: One adjustment is included (for example, "Can you make it two inches longer?" or "Can you swap the accent color?"). If the change requires starting over, quote the additional cost before proceeding.
- After completion: Alterations that require remaking the piece are quoted as a new order. Minor fixes (trimming a fringe, tightening a knot) are done at no charge.

Never Start Without Confirmation

It is tempting to jump into production because you are excited about the project. Wait for their written "yes" on the summary. This single habit will eliminate most custom order headaches.

1C. The Simple Reorder Model

A reorder system is anything that keeps your name in front of past buyers so that when they are ready to buy again, you are the first person they think of. It does not need to be complicated.

Package Inserts That Drive Reorders

Every piece you ship is a marketing opportunity. What you include in the package matters more than most sellers realize. A thoughtful unboxing experience turns a buyer into a fan.

What to include with every order:

1. A handwritten thank-you note. Two or three sentences. Use their name. Mention the specific piece they ordered. This takes 30 seconds and creates a personal connection that mass sellers cannot replicate.
2. Care instructions card. A small card with washing and maintenance tips for their specific piece. This reduces "it got damaged" complaints and positions you as a professional.
3. A collection preview card. A simple card or printed photo showing your current or upcoming collection. Include a short line: "New pieces dropping [month]." This plants the seed for the next purchase.
4. A reorder card. "Loved this piece? I make matching placemats, coasters, and centerpiece mats in the same style. Ask me about custom sets." Include your shop name and how they can reach your listings.

High Impact, Low Cost

- Kraft paper wrap (pennies per order)
- Handwritten note on a branded card
- Dried flower sprig or cinnamon stick tucked in
- Printed care card on cardstock

Skip These

- Expensive custom tissue paper
- Discount codes on the first order
- Branded stickers that cost more than the wrapping
- Long printed letters nobody reads

Follow-Up Timing

Timing is everything. Reach out too soon and you seem desperate. Wait too long and they forget you exist. Here is the rhythm that works for table setting pieces:

TOUCHPOINT	WHEN	PURPOSE	WHAT TO SAY
Delivery confirmation	2–3 days after delivery	Make sure they received it; fix any issues early	"Hi [Name]! Just checking in—did your [piece] arrive safely?"
Check-in	30 days after delivery	Keep the relationship warm; invite feedback	"How is your [piece] looking on your table? I would love to see a photo if you have one."
Seasonal transition	When the next season approaches	Introduce your upcoming collection	"Fall is coming and I have been working on a new collection. Want a sneak peek?"
Holiday pre-order	6–8 weeks before a major holiday	Drive early orders for holiday pieces	"My holiday pieces sell out fast—want to reserve yours before they are gone?"

How to Create a Simple Catalog

You do not need a website or a fancy platform to have a catalog. A catalog is simply a way for past buyers to see everything you currently offer in one place.

Three low-cost catalog options:

1. Photo album on your phone. Create a dedicated album with photos of every available piece, each labeled with the name, size, and price. When a past buyer asks "What do you have right now?" you share the album.
2. One-page PDF. A single page with photos, names, sizes, and prices of your current collection. Print it to include in packages or share digitally.
3. Pinned listing or highlight. If you sell on a marketplace, keep a pinned post or featured listing that shows your full current collection in one place.

Simple Order Tracking

You do not need software. A notebook or a simple spreadsheet with these columns covers everything:

COLUMN	WHAT TO RECORD	WHY IT MATTERS
Customer name	Full name	Personalization in follow-ups
Date ordered	Purchase date	Triggers your follow-up schedule
Piece(s) ordered	What they bought (type, color, size)	Recommend complementary pieces later
Price paid	Total including shipping	Track revenue and repeat buyer value
Delivery date	When it arrived	Start your follow-up timer
Follow-up dates	30-day, 90-day, seasonal	Never forget to reach out
Notes	Preferences, feedback, special requests	Personalize future interactions

Reorder System Setup Checklist

- ☐ Create your order tracking notebook or spreadsheet with all seven columns
- ☐ Write your handwritten thank-you note template (keep it to 2–3 sentences)

- ☐ Prepare your delivery confirmation message template
- ☐ Test your package insert system: pack one order as if it were real and review

SECTION 2

12-Month Collection Calendar

Your complete month-by-month guide to seasonal collections, themes, colors, and launch timing.

This calendar gives you a full year of collection ideas planned in advance. You do not have to launch every single month—pick the four or five that align with your capacity and your customers' buying habits. The key is to always have your next collection planned before your current one wraps up.

For each month, you will find the theme, recommended pieces, a specific color palette, the ideal launch date, and the marketing angle that will resonate with buyers of handmade table setting pieces.

MONTH	THEME	COLLECTION PIECES	COLOR PALETTE	LAUNCH DATE	MARKETING ANGLE
January	Fresh Start / New Year	Minimalist runner, 4 simple placemats, coaster set (4)	Clean white, soft sage, natural linen	Jan 2–5	"Start the year with a clean table." Focus on simplicity, fresh beginnings, and decluttered dining.

Offer two or three colorways within the same collection. Gift- wrapping available. Emphasize tradition and warmth.

How to Use This Calendar

1. Pick your four core collections. Most sellers start with Spring, Fall, Thanksgiving, and Christmas. Add months as your capacity grows.
2. Work backward from the launch date. Allow 3–4 weeks for production. That means you start making your fall collection in early August if launching late August.
3. Announce before you launch. Tease your upcoming collection 1–2 weeks before the launch date. Show behind-the-scenes photos of work in progress. Let past buyers know first.
4. Create a pre-order window. Open orders 3–5 days before the official launch for repeat customers and VIP list members. This rewards loyalty and helps you gauge demand.
5. Close the collection when the season passes. Do not leave Christmas pieces listed in February. Scarcity drives value. When a collection closes, it closes.

Customer Messaging by Month

Each month above includes a marketing angle. Use these as the opening line of your announcement message to past buyers. Example for September: "Gather around a handmade table. My fall collection drops this Friday—six new pieces in burnt sienna, cream, and forest green. Want to see them before anyone else?" This one sentence gives them the theme, the date, the colors, and an exclusive offer.

Seasonal Color Quick Reference

SEASON	PRIMARY COLORS	ACCENT COLORS	MATERIALS THAT PAIR WELL
Winter (Jan–Feb)	White, cream, soft gray	Silver, pale blue, blush	Cotton cord, soft woven fabrics
Spring (Mar–May)	Sage, lavender, buttercream	Gold, peach, robin's egg blue	Light cotton, pastel-dyed cord
Summer (Jun–Aug)	Turquoise, coral, bright white	Sunny yellow, lime green	Jute, durable outdoor-weight cotton
Fall (Sep–Nov)	Burnt orange, cream, olive	Burgundy, copper, mustard	Natural jute, thick cotton cord

SECTION 3

10 Custom Order Scripts

Copy-paste conversation templates for every stage of the customer relationship.

These scripts are written for you to copy, paste, and personalize. Replace [CUSTOMER NAME] with their actual name and [PIECE DETAILS] with specifics about what they ordered. The goal is to sound warm and personal, not robotic. Read each script aloud before sending—if it sounds like something you would actually say, it is ready.

Script 1: First Contact After a Sale

WHEN TO USE

Send this 2–3 days after the customer receives their order. This is your first follow-up and the most important message in the entire sequence. It sets the tone for the relationship.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], I just wanted to check in and make sure your [PIECE DETAILS] arrived safely and that you are happy with it. I put a lot of care into making this piece, and it means a lot to me that it found a good home. If you have a moment, I would love to hear how it looks on your table. And if anything is not quite right, please let me know—I want to make sure you are completely satisfied. By the way, I also make matching pieces like placemats, coasters, and centerpiece mats in the same style and colors. If you ever want to build out a full coordinated set for your table, I would be happy to show you what is available. Thank you again for choosing handmade. It truly makes a difference. Warm regards, [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

Wait 5–7 days. If no reply, do not send another message about this order. Simply add them to your 30-day follow-up list and reach out then with the Script 6 message. Not everyone replies, and that is perfectly fine—the seed is planted.

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- If you remember anything specific from the order (they mentioned it was for a birthday dinner, they chose a custom color), reference it.
- If the piece was a gift, ask: "I hope [the recipient] loved it!"
- Keep it to this length. Longer messages feel like marketing; this length feels like a note from a friend.

Script 2: Seasonal Collection Preview for Past Buyers

WHEN TO USE

Send this 5–7 days before you launch a new seasonal collection. Only send it to people who have bought from you before. This exclusivity is the point—they get to see it before anyone else.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], I have been working on something new and I wanted you to see it before I share it publicly. My new [SEASON] collection, "[COLLECTION NAME]," drops on [DATE]. It includes [list 2–3 key pieces, e.g., "a 72-inch table runner, matching placemats in sets of 4, and a new centerpiece mat design"]. The color palette is [describe: e.g., "burnt orange, deep cream, and olive green—perfect for fall gatherings"]. As someone who has ordered from me before, you get first pick. If any of these pieces catch your eye, just reply to this message and I will set one aside for you before the public launch. I am making limited quantities of each piece, so once they are gone, they are gone until next year. Looking forward to hearing what you think! [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

On launch day, send a brief message: "Just a heads up—the [COLLECTION NAME] collection is live now. A few pieces are already claimed. Here is a look at what is still available: [link or photo]." Keep it short and factual.

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- Reference what they bought last time. "Since you loved the Coastal Morning runner, I think you will really like the new [piece name]—it has a similar feel but in fall tones."
- If you offer a repeat-buyer perk (early ordering, priority shipping), mention it naturally, not as a sales pitch.

Script 3: Custom Order Inquiry Response

WHEN TO USE

When someone reaches out asking about a custom piece. This script helps you gather the information you need to quote accurately, without overwhelming the customer with questions.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], Thank you for reaching out about a custom piece! I love making one-of-a-kind table settings, so I am excited to hear what you have in mind. To put together the perfect piece for you, I have a few quick questions: 1. What type of piece are you looking for? (Table runner, placemats, centerpiece mat, coasters, or a full set?) 2. What size do you need? (If you are not sure, how long is your table and how many people will it seat?) 3. Do you have a color palette in mind? (Feel free to send me a photo of your dining room or an inspiration image—that helps a lot.) 4. Is this for a specific occasion or date? (I want to make sure I can deliver on time.) 5. Do you have a budget range you are working with? No pressure on having all the answers right now—we can figure it out together. Just reply with whatever you know, and I will take it from there. [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

Wait 4–5 days. Then: "Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], just circling back on your custom piece inquiry. No rush at all—if you are still interested, I am here whenever you are ready. And if your plans changed, no worries at all!"

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- If they mentioned a specific occasion, acknowledge it: "A custom runner for your Thanksgiving dinner sounds wonderful."
- If they sent a photo or inspiration image with their inquiry, reference it: "I love the style in the photo you shared. I can definitely work with those tones."

Script 4: Custom Order Quote Delivery

WHEN TO USE

After you have gathered all the details and calculated the price. This is where many sellers lose the sale by being vague or apologetic about pricing. Be confident and clear.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], I have put together your custom order details. Here is what I have: Piece: [PIECE TYPE] — [DIMENSIONS] Colors: [COLOR DETAILS] Pattern: [PATTERN DESCRIPTION or "matching your inspiration photo"] Material: [MATERIAL] Price: [AMOUNT] (includes materials, handcrafting time, and [customization level from Section 1B]) Shipping: [AMOUNT or "included"] Total: [TOTAL AMOUNT] Timeline: I will begin work within [X] days of your confirmation. Estimated completion: [DATE]. Shipping: [DATE]. To get started, I will need a [DEPOSIT AMOUNT] design deposit, which applies toward your total. The remaining balance is due when the piece is complete and I send you the final photos. One revision to the design is included after I send you a progress photo. If you need changes after that, I will let you know if there is any additional cost before moving forward. Does this all look good to you? If you would like to adjust anything before we start, now is the time—changes are easy at this stage. [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

Wait 5–7 days. "Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], just checking in on the quote I sent for your custom [piece]. If you have any questions about pricing, timeline, or the process, I am happy to walk through it. And if you have decided to go a different direction, no hard feelings at all."

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- If the price is higher than a standard piece, briefly explain why: "The custom color sourcing adds a bit to the cost because I am ordering cord specifically for your piece."
- Never apologize for your pricing. State it factually. Confidence in your price builds trust.

Script 5: Order Completion + Delivery Notification

WHEN TO USE

When the piece is finished and ready to ship. This message should generate excitement about receiving their order.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], Your [PIECE DETAILS] is complete, and I am so happy with how it turned out! Here are a few photos of the finished piece: [attach 2–3 clear photos showing the piece from different angles, ideally styled on a table]. I am packaging it up now with care instructions included. I will ship it out by [DATE], and you will receive your tracking information as soon as it is on its way. Estimated delivery: [DATE RANGE]. A few quick care tips for your new piece: • [Care tip 1, e.g., "Spot clean with mild soap and cool water"] • [Care tip 2, e.g., "Lay flat to dry—avoid the dryer"] • [Care tip 3, e.g., "Store rolled, not folded, to avoid creasing"] I hope you love it as much as I enjoyed making it. Once it is on your table, I would love to see a photo if you are willing to share! [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

No follow-up needed at this stage. Your next touchpoint is Script 1 (First Contact After a Sale), sent 2–3 days after delivery.

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- Include a detail about the making process: "The knotwork on the fringe took an extra day but it was worth it for that clean finish."
- If it was a custom order, reference their original vision: "Your idea to combine the sage and burnt orange was spot on."

Script 6: 30-Day Follow-Up

WHEN TO USE

Exactly 30 days after delivery. This is a relationship-building message with a soft introduction to your next collection. Do not make it feel like a sales pitch.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], It has been about a month since your [PIECE DETAILS] arrived, and I have been wondering—how is it holding up? Has it gotten any compliments from guests? I always love hearing how my pieces fit into people's homes. If you have a photo of it on your table, I would be thrilled to see it. (No pressure at all, just genuinely curious!) On my end, I have been working on some new pieces for the upcoming [SEASON]. I am playing with [mention one or two color or material details—e.g., "a deeper burgundy cord and some new geometric patterns"]. I think you might like what is coming. I will share a preview with my past buyers before anyone else sees it. Stay tuned! Hope you are having a great [season/week/month]. [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

Do not follow up on this specific message. Simply move them to the 90-day touchpoint (Script 7). Silence does not mean disinterest—many people read and appreciate these messages without replying.

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- If they sent a photo or review after their purchase, reference it: "I loved the photo you sent of the runner on your farmhouse table. It looked perfect!"
- If you know their style preferences from their order, tailor the teaser: "Since you went with the minimalist look, I think you will love the clean lines in the new collection."

Script 7: 90-Day Seasonal Reach-Out

WHEN TO USE

About 90 days after their purchase, ideally timed to coincide with a new season or collection launch. This is where the seasonal calendar in Section 2 connects with your messaging.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], Can you believe [SEASON] is already here? It feels like just yesterday I was packing up your [PIECE DETAILS]. I have a brand-new collection called "[COLLECTION NAME]" that I am launching this [DAY/DATE]. It is all about [brief theme description—e.g., "warm autumn tones and textures that make your table feel like a cozy gathering spot"]. The collection includes: • [Piece 1 — e.g., "A 72-inch 'Golden Harvest' table runner in burnt sienna and cream"] • [Piece 2 — e.g., "Matching placemats in sets of 4 or 6"] • [Piece 3 — e.g., "A new round centerpiece mat design"] Since you are a past buyer, you get early access. The collection goes public on [DATE], but you can reserve your favorites right now by replying to this message. I am making limited quantities—once each piece is claimed, it is gone until next season. Would love to hear if anything catches your eye! [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

On launch day or the day after: "Quick update—the [COLLECTION NAME] collection launched today! [X pieces already sold]. Here is what is still available if you are interested: [brief list or photo]. No pressure at all—just wanted to make sure you did not miss it." Keep this brief and factual.

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- If they bought a fall piece, pitch the holiday transition: "Your autumn runner was perfect for October—now picture a matching holiday set for December."
- If they bought a set, suggest the missing piece: "You already have the runner and placemats—the new centerpiece mat would complete the look."

Script 8: Repeat Customer Special Offer

WHEN TO USE

After a customer has purchased two or more times. This message rewards loyalty and deepens the relationship. Only send this to genuine repeat buyers, not first-time customers.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], I wanted to take a moment to say thank you. You have ordered from me [NUMBER] times now, and that means more than I can say. Knowing that my pieces have a place in your home is the reason I do this work. I have something special for my most loyal customers: on your next order, I would like to offer you [SPECIFIC PERK—e.g., "a free set of matching coasters with any runner purchase," or "priority placement on my next collection—you get to pick your pieces before anyone else," or "a complimentary custom color swap on any standard piece"]. No expiration, no catch. Just my way of saying thank you for being part of the Table Patterns family. Whenever you are ready for your next piece, just let me know. With gratitude, [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

No follow-up needed. The offer stands. Mention it casually the next time they order: "By the way, your loyalty perk is still available if you would like to use it on this order."

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- Choose a perk that matches their buying pattern. If they always buy runners, offer a complementary piece (coasters, placemats). If they buy sets, offer a custom color option.
- Keep the perk simple and easy to redeem. Complicated loyalty programs with points and tiers do not work at the handmade scale.

Script 9: Referral Request

WHEN TO USE

After a customer has expressed satisfaction—they sent a photo, left a positive review, or told you they loved their piece. Never ask for a referral from someone who has not shown they are happy first.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], It made my day when you [shared that photo of your table / told me how much you love the runner / left that kind review]. Hearing that really keeps me going. I have a small favor to ask. If you know anyone who might love a handmade piece for their table—a friend who is hosting Thanksgiving, a sister who just moved into a new home, a coworker who loves to entertain—I would be so grateful if you pointed them my way. Word of mouth is the single best way my business grows. Every new customer who comes from a recommendation is someone I would never have found on my own. As a thank-you, if someone you refer places an order and mentions your name, I will [REFERRAL REWARD—e.g., "send you a complimentary set of coasters in any color you choose" or "give you first pick on my next collection before I share it with anyone else"]. No pressure at all. Just knowing you are out there enjoying your piece is reward enough. [YOUR NAME]

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

Do not follow up on referral requests. If they refer someone, thank them genuinely and deliver the reward promptly. If they do not, never bring it up again.

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- Make the referral reward tangible and specific. "A little something" is vague. "A set of four coasters in the color of your choice" is clear and appealing.
- Give them specific scenarios to think of (hosting, new home, entertaining) rather than a generic "anyone who might be interested."

Script 10: Holiday Pre-Order Invitation

WHEN TO USE

6–8 weeks before a major holiday (Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter). This is your highest-conversion message because the urgency is real—handmade pieces need time to produce and ship.

THE MESSAGE

Copy & Personalize

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], [HOLIDAY] is [NUMBER] weeks away, and I am opening pre-orders for my holiday table collection now. Here is what I am offering this year: • [Piece 1 with brief description and price] • [Piece 2 with brief description and price] • [Piece 3 with brief description and price] • Full set: [Set description and set price, showing the savings vs. buying individually] I handmake every piece, so I can only take a limited number of orders. Once my production calendar is full, I will close pre-orders and the next available date will be after the holiday. Pre-order cutoff: [DATE—give yourself enough time to produce and ship everything] If you want a piece (or a full set) for your [HOLIDAY] table, reply to this message with what you would like, and I will reserve your spot. Past buyers get priority—I always take care of my returning customers first. [YOUR NAME] P.S. These pieces also make thoughtful gifts. If you want to order one for someone else's table, I can include a handwritten gift note at no extra charge.

FOLLOW-UP IF NO RESPONSE

One week before the pre-order cutoff: "Quick reminder—pre-orders for [HOLIDAY] pieces close on [DATE]. I have [X] spots left on my production calendar. If you are still thinking about it, now is the time!" This is one of the few messages where a direct follow-up is appropriate because the deadline is real.

TIPS FOR PERSONALIZING

- Reference what they bought last year if applicable: "Last year you got the Thanksgiving runner—this year's 'Golden Harvest' collection would pair beautifully with it."
- If you know they host big gatherings, pitch the full set: "Since you mentioned hosting 10 for Thanksgiving, the full set with the extra-long runner and 8 placemats might be perfect."
- The P.S. about gift orders often drives additional sales. People buy for themselves and then realize they could gift one too.

SECTION 4

VIP Client System

Turn your best customers into loyal insiders who feel valued and keep coming back.

Your VIP clients are the 10–20% of buyers who generate 50% or more of your revenue. They buy multiple times, they refer friends, and they respond to your messages. These people deserve a different experience than a first-time buyer. This section shows you how to create one—simply and without expensive tools.

4A. Loyalty Card Template

The Punch-Card Loyalty System

A loyalty card is the simplest way to reward repeat purchases. It works the same way your local coffee shop's stamp card works, adapted for handmade products with higher price points and longer purchase cycles.

How it works:

- Include a printed loyalty card with every order (print at home on cardstock or have them printed inexpensively at a local print shop).
- Each purchase earns one stamp or punch. The customer keeps their card.
- After a set number of purchases, they earn a reward.

Design Specifications

ELEMENT	SPECIFICATION
Card size	Standard business card (3.5" x 2") — fits in a wallet
Cardstock weight	80 lb / 216 gsm cover stock (sturdy enough to survive a wallet)
Front	Your business name, "Loyalty Card," and a brief tagline: "Handmade pieces for your table, one season at a time."
Back	5 empty circles or squares for stamps/punches, numbered 1–5. Below: "Collect 5 purchases. Earn your reward."
Colors	Match your brand palette (use the same tones as your packaging and care cards)

ELEMENT	SPECIFICATION
Punch method	Hand-stamp with a small decorative stamp, or hole-punch each circle. Initial the stamp so it cannot be forged.

How Many Purchases for a Reward

Recommended: 5 purchases. This is achievable (a customer who buys once per season reaches it in just over a year) but not so easy that you give rewards away. For higher-priced pieces, you could lower it to 3 or 4 purchases.

What Rewards to Offer

Best Rewards • Free small piece (coaster set or napkin ring set) with their next order • One free custom color swap on any standard piece • First access to every new collection for a full year • A free upgrade: order 4 placemats, get 6	Avoid These Rewards • Percentage discounts (they devalue your work and train buyers to wait for sales) • Free shipping (only use this if your margins can absorb it without resentment) • Vague "surprise gift" (people want to know what they are earning) • Points systems (too complex for handmade scale)

Why Free Pieces Beat Discounts

Giving a free set of coasters (your material cost might be a few dollars) feels generous and tangible. A 10% discount on a $45 runner saves the customer $4.50—it does not feel like much and it lowers your perceived value. Always reward with product, not price cuts. You keep your pricing integrity and the customer gets something they can hold.

4B. Reorder Reminder Sequences

These are the three touchpoints that keep your VIP clients engaged between collections. Each one has a specific purpose and a specific message.

30-Day Reminder (Check-In)

PURPOSE

Reconnect after the initial excitement of receiving their piece. Show that you care about their experience, not just their money.

EXACT MESSAGE

30-Day Check-In

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], It has been about a month since your [PIECE DETAILS] arrived. I hope it is getting lots of use and compliments! Quick question: is there anything about the piece you wish were different? I am always refining my craft, and honest feedback from my best customers is the most valuable thing I can get. Also, I am starting to plan my [NEXT SEASON] collection. If there is a style, color, or piece type you have been wishing someone would make, I am all ears. You might just inspire the next design. Hope your table is looking beautiful! [YOUR NAME]

90-Day Reminder (Seasonal Transition)

PURPOSE

The seasons are changing, and so should their table. This is a natural, non-pushy way to introduce your next collection.

EXACT MESSAGE

90-Day Seasonal Transition

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], The shift from [CURRENT SEASON] to [NEXT SEASON] is my favorite time—it means I get to create a whole new set of pieces. I have been working on my [NEXT SEASON] collection and I am really excited about how it is shaping up. The palette is [describe colors—e.g., "rich burgundy, warm copper, and deep cream"], and I am experimenting with [technique or material detail—e.g., "a new knotting pattern that gives the runner a beautiful textured edge"]. You are on my VIP list, which means you will see the full collection before I share it anywhere else. I will send you a preview with photos in about [X] days. In the meantime, is there anything specific you are looking for this season? If so, I can make sure it is part of the lineup. [YOUR NAME]

180-Day Reminder (Major Season Change)

PURPOSE

Six months have passed. This is a re-engagement message for VIP clients you have not heard from in a while. It acknowledges the gap without being awkward.

EXACT MESSAGE

180-Day Re-Engagement

Hi [CUSTOMER NAME], I realized it has been a while since we last connected, and I wanted to reach out. I have released two new collections since your last order—[COLLECTION NAME 1] and [COLLECTION NAME 2]—and I have a third one in the works for [UPCOMING SEASON]. A lot of my past buyers have been adding to their table sets season by season, building a full rotation of pieces so their table always matches the time of year. If that sounds appealing to you, I would love to help you plan the next addition. No pressure at all. Just wanted you to know that your spot on my VIP list is still here, and you will always get the first look at anything new. Wishing you a wonderful [SEASON]. [YOUR NAME]

4C. Exclusive Preview System

Making your best buyers feel like insiders is the simplest and most effective retention strategy for a handmade business. It costs you nothing and it creates a bond that discounts cannot match.

How to Make Buyers Feel Like Insiders

The psychology is straightforward: people value what is exclusive. If everyone sees your new collection at the same time, there is no advantage to being a loyal buyer. If your repeat buyers see it first, place orders first, and sometimes get access to pieces that never go public, they feel special—because they are.

Three levels of exclusivity you can offer:

1. Early access. VIP buyers see photos of the new collection 3–7 days before the public launch. They can claim pieces before anyone else.
2. Input on designs. Ask VIP buyers what colors or styles they want to see in the next collection. Even if only one person responds, including their suggestion in the lineup makes them feel invested.
3. VIP-only pieces. Once or twice a year, make a piece that is only available to repeat buyers. It does not have to be elaborate—a limited-edition colorway of a popular runner, or a small accent piece like a coaster set in an exclusive pattern. The point is exclusivity, not extravagance.

"VIP List" Management (Simple Notebook Method)

You do not need an email marketing platform. A dedicated section in your order notebook or a separate page in your spreadsheet is enough.

COLUMN	WHAT TO TRACK
Customer name	Full name
Total orders	Number of times they have purchased
Last order date	When they last bought
Favorite styles	What types/colors/patterns they gravitate toward
Preferred contact method	How they like to be reached (text, marketplace message, etc.)
VIP since	When they qualified (after 2nd purchase)
Notes	Personal details they have shared (they host big Thanksgivings, they moved to a new house, etc.)

When Does Someone Become a VIP?

After their second purchase. That is the threshold. One purchase could be a fluke. Two purchases means they chose you again on purpose. From that point forward, they get every VIP communication and perk.

Pre-Launch Access: Show Them First

Here is the exact process for running a VIP pre-launch:

- 1 Photograph the collection. Take clear photos of every piece, styled on a table if possible. Natural light, clean background, no clutter.
- 2 Send the preview to your VIP list. Use the seasonal preview script (Script 2) or the 90-day seasonal reach-out (Script 7). Include all photos, piece names, sizes, and prices.
- 3 Accept orders from VIPs. Give them 3–5 days of exclusive access. If a piece is claimed, mark it as sold and let them know.
- 4 Launch publicly. After the VIP window closes, share the collection with everyone. Mark any VIP-claimed pieces as sold to create visible demand.
- 5 Follow up with VIPs who did not order. A brief message on launch day: "The collection is live now. You still have first pick on anything that is left."

Early-Bird Pricing Structure

Early-bird pricing is optional and should be used sparingly. If you use it:

- Keep the discount small. You are offering a timing advantage, not a sale. A free upgrade (4 placemats for the price of 3) works better than a percentage off.
- Make it time-limited. "Order during the VIP window and get [perk]." After the public launch, the perk expires.
- Frame it as a reward, not a discount. "As a thank-you for being a returning customer, I am including a free set of coasters with any runner ordered this week." This is much stronger than "10% off for early orders."

Do Not Train Your Buyers to Wait for Discounts

If you run frequent sales or always offer early-bird discounts, your buyers will learn to wait. They will hold off on ordering because they know a deal is coming. Use VIP perks sparingly—once per season at most—and always frame them as gratitude-based gifts, not price reductions.

Set Pricing Strategy Summary

COLLECTION	INDIVIDUAL TOTAL	SET PRICE	SAVINGS	DISCOUNT %
Winter Wonderland	$103	$89	$14	~14%
Spring Garden	$88	$76	$12	~14%
Golden Harvest	$121	$105	$16	~13%
Summer Bloom	$82	$72	$10	~12%

Why 12–15% Set Discounts Work

A 12–15% set discount is the sweet spot. It is enough that the customer feels rewarded for buying the whole set, but it does not slash your margins. At this range, your increased volume (selling 3 pieces at once instead of 1) more than compensates for the per-piece discount. Avoid going above 20%—that starts cutting into your profit and signals that your individual prices are inflated.

Next Step

Set up your reorder system this week using the checklist in Section 1, then plan your first seasonal collection using the calendar in Section 2.
Your next customer is already waiting to buy again.
